

July 27,
Major Ivan Allen Jr.

Atlanta, Georgia

My dear Sir: I'm not exactly white nor am I a restaurant owner! I'm just an insignificant bread-winner with a sharp interest in the race issue who for the last 10 or 11 years has worked in the "better class" restaurants of several States.

Based on my own personal experiences I'd say that more often than not when a negro comes in a better class restaurant here in the "North," he does so to either test whether or not he'll be given good service and/or give the manager, help or other guests a hard time by being nasty or loud, obnoxious, and the like!

2) Personally, Hon. Allen, you may be older - and wiser - than me but when it comes to so called racial equality, I think you know very little!

Sincerely
J. Chico Ramos
