

Officer in Aaron Case Resigns

Patrolman L. W. Bedgood, one of three officers suspended following an incident at Atlanta Stadium involving the wife of Braves' star Henry Aaron, has resigned from the Atlanta Police Department.

Bedgood's resignation was effective Sept. 20, according to the police department daily bulletin.

Bedgood said he gave Mrs. Barbara Aaron copies of charges for failure to obey an officer's signal and cursing while working traffic at the stadium. Mrs. Aaron, through her attorney, accused Bedgood of having drawn his service revolver.

Bedgood and Lieutenants C. J. Strickland and Ben F. Rains were suspended while an investigation was conducted in the incident.
