

Sept. 7, 1966

Dear Louise and Ivan:-

Yesterday's confrontation warrants more than silent appreciation, even from old and tested friends.

A man's true stature is seldom obvious, for few are tested as you were yesterday, Ivan. No one could have been more courageous or more wise in judgment. Thank God for both your courage and your wisdom and gratitude most of all.

Louise, the experiences my "children" had nearly eight years ago, and I me to, in part, I

what you are giving
I have and I
and I'll be called on which
one with you
I have to these
keep the as always
