Gentlemen:

Alan M. Voorhees and Associates, now under contract to the State Highway Department, and indirectly under contract to MARTA, and proposed as a consultant to the Central Atlanta Study and to Economic Opportunity Atlanta, is going to be in a position of working on transportation problems in Atlanta under several different contracts for several different agencies. We should be very careful that we are not paying more money for any particular job under the several contracts than we would have paid had there been but one contract.

MARTA has had PBTB under multiple-contracts simultaneously with the Atlanta Region Metropolitan Planning Commission, and our Counsel arranged the following wording to cover the situation mentioned above in connection with Voorhees:

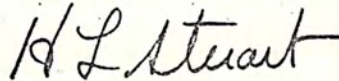

"It is recognized that a separate contract concerning engineering for this same project exists between the Authority and the Engineer (therein designated "Contractor") and that, in addition, a contract exists between the Atlanta Region Metropolitan Planning Commission and the Engineer (therein designated "Contractor") for updating a previous planning study concerning the same project. Because of the inter-relationship of the three contracts, the Engineer agrees it shall report to the Authority its costs on each of these contracts, computed on the reimbursement bases of the terms of this Agreement, and Engineer further agrees that the total compensation to the Engineer under the three contracts shall be no more than that which would obtain had the work all been performed under the terms of this Agreement."

I refer this to you for review by your Legal Counsel.

Sincerely yours,

H. L. Stuart,
General Manager.
